The Bar Council Professional Standards and Development Committee is continuing with its series of Advocacy Training Courses ("ATCs"), from February 2013.

The course is designed to teach the basics of advocacy, utilising the Hampel method of advocacy teaching. The Hampel teaching method requires participants to perform as advocates in a simulated courtroom environment under the supervision of experienced and trained practitioners who will observe their performance and offer guidance. Participants will be divided into groups of six persons and will be trained by at least two senior lawyers in each group.

The course is best suited to teaching advocacy to lawyers in their first to third years of practice, as it aims to identify and correct basic mistakes in advocacy and to guide new practitioners on the correct way to present themselves and their arguments in a courtroom. The training method is similar to that employed in the Bar Professional Training Course (previously the Bar Vocational Course) in the United Kingdom.

Members are encouraged to register for, and attend, the course.

Given the nature of the teaching method employed, the course is open to only 30 participants for each session. Places will be given on a first-come, first-served basis but Members are encouraged to register their names nonetheless, as it is intended that the course will be organised regularly for the benefit of Members.

This course carries 12 points for trainers, facilitators and participants under the Bar Council Continuing Professional Development Scheme.

To register, kindly complete and submit the attached registration form by fax to 03-2050 2112 or by email to cpd@malaysianbar.org.my. For enquiries, please contact Mohd Fazli Rosman (03-2050 2105; cpd@malaysianbar.org.my) or Vilashini Vijayan (03-2050 2095; cpd@malaysianbar.org.my).
