

TPP: Trans-Pacific Partnership, or a Touchy Power Play?

On paper, the Trans-Pacific Partnership (“TPP”) “seeks to support the wider liberalisation process in the Asia-Pacific Economic Cooperation (“APEC”) consistent with its goals of free and open trade and investment”. But with two of Asia’s fastest growing economies left out of the equation, where will balance be sought? And what will be the economic, political and legal implications in the region?
