Dr Corinne Chew co-heads the firm's competition law and regulatory practice.

Her experience extends to all areas of competition law practice, including assisting clients with filing merger notifications to the Competition and Consumer Commission of Singapore ("CCCS"), leniency applications, and CCCS investigations.

Corinne has also assisted multi-national and local companies in setting up competition law compliance and audit structures, dawn raid and whistle-blowing programmes and conducting audit checks across a range of industries.

Corinne's corporate experience includes contractual and regulatory advice for listed and unlisted companies across a spectrum of industries, including aviation, technology, manufacturing and financial services.

With regard to the aviation industry in particular, Corinne has assisted in competition law as well as regulatory and licensing advice, and in contractual matters pertaining to air services agreements, passenger and cargo airline operations, travel agencies, global distribution systems, airport services, airport retail services and asset transfers.

Dr Marc Reysen
(LLM); Partner, Reysen Competition Law

Dr Marc Reysen (LLM) is the founder of Reysen Competition Law ("REYCOL"), a competition boutique that reintroduces a sense of personal commitment to the provision of competition law advice.

Frankfurt and Brussels-based, Marc advises clients on various issues of European and German competition law and represents clients before the European Commission and Germany's Federal Cartel Office. Besides his focus on merger control and general advisory work, Marc has advised and defended clients in a number of cartel investigations at national and international levels, being willing to defend a client just as much as cooperating with authorities where it is called for.

Reflecting his clients' needs in a globalising world, Marc's practice also has a special focus on developing compliance strategies for regional and global businesses. For this purpose, he works closely with several other law firms that provide specific local input to develop approaches aligned with a client's global policies and accommodating local specifics.

Marc is applying REYCOL's signature hands-on approach throughout his work. It affects how he advises owners, investors, and buyers on merger control matters, going beyond simply filling out forms. It makes him roll up his sleeves to help clients navigate the multi-jurisdictional challenges of designing global distribution systems and gives him context when he uses down-to-earth language to explain that successful antitrust compliance depends on ethical business values as well as legal tools.

Marc holds law degrees from the universities of Bonn and Edinburgh. He is the past co-chair of the Antitrust Section of the International Bar Association ("IBA") and a member of their Advisory Committee.
